

Another week comes, another "restaurant week" hits. Atlanta's Midtown Restaurant Week, which drops for the 4th time, starts tonight (August 29) and runs through Sunday, September 6th. This one features a whopping 43 restaurants (if my math is correct). In what has become formulaic normalcy, you show up at one of the participating restaurants, ask for and order off a special prix-fixe menu, and get three courses for $25. Don't forget: alcohol isn't included, and neither is tax and gratuity. If you want the full on onslaught of information, check out the Midtown Restaurant Week official website. Otherwise, just keep reading for the list of menus and restaurants!

Note: All menus listed are pdf's hosted on The Reynolds Group website. Each of those menus provides you with the prix-fixe offerings as well as some supplemental information about the event. I strongly suggest you check out those menus before making a reservation, as there are some quirky hours for some of the spots. In addition, most of the restaurants offer online reservations through OpenTable (direct links provided).
